Please Join Us:

Are Vaccinations ‘Everybody’s Business’?

Enjoy and respond to a Pacific Northwest documentary called Everybody’s Business by Laura Green, a film that unpacks the concerns of diverse stakeholders regarding the balance between personal choice and public health in the context of childhood vaccinations.

Facilitated by Dr. Judy Guzman, DO, Oregon Health & Sciences University

April 28, 2015  5:45 - 7:45 p.m.

The Lucky Labrador Pub (all ages)
1700 N. Killingsworth St., Portland, OR 97217

$5 General admission
Includes discussion and first glass of wine/beer if 21+
REGISTER at http://www.nwabr.org/conversation/portland

What are Community Conversations?

Each informal Conversation explores a topic in biomedical science and its relationship with ethics, medicine, research and society, connecting people to the biomedical research community. Learning from each other, our goal is to help people thoughtfully engage in and advance biomedical research. Everyone is welcome. No science background necessary.

In partnership with NWABR members Legacy Research Institute, Oregon Health & Sciences University and Portland State University and supporter and Oregon Health Authority